Students Will Fast For Two Days To Understand Real Hunger

Fifteen McGill students will start a two day fast tomorrow night, in order to experience "real hunger pangs".

They want to find out how it feels to be hungry in order to get a better understanding of the billions of people in the world who never have sufficient to eat. The marathon World Brotherhood Fast, under the auspices of the Canadian European Society of McGill, will start in the Union Ballroom with a conference on "The role of the individual in bringing about world brotherhood and in resolving international strife."

Mahatma Gandhi

The fasters emphasize that this is not a hunger strike or a protest. They want it to be a "Symbol of their deep concern for a closer and more intimate relationship between human beings based on mutual respect". During the fast they hope to meditate, focus attention on important issues and initiate action while "unpreoccupied by the limitations of everyday problems". The fasters will donate the money they would have spent on eating, drinking and smoking to the Combined Charities.

However Combined Charities officials told the Daily last night that the organizers of the fast had no official recognition or connection with the Combined Charities organization.

The group will spend Thursday in seminars in which students and staff are invited to participate. The morning topic is listed as "Can there be a saint without God", and the afternoon seminar will discuss "Population explosion and birth control". The evening discussion will be about "Confliction Ideologies". The second day of the fast will be devoted to "drawing up resolutions and planning future action". Suggestions from students and staff are invited. All events will take place in the Union.

Participating will be students from the India Students Association, the Pakistani Club, Canadian-European Society, and the Advance Organization of the United Nations.

Some 110 McGill students have signed a letter approving the proposed "Student Court of Justice" for McGill. In a letter to the Editor received yesterday students in Law, Arts, Science, Architecture, Engineering, Commerce, Physio and Occupational Therapy and Medicine, put their names to a one sentence document which read, "We the undersigned are in favour of a student Court".

Presumably, the writers were referring to a student court first proposed by a group of students late last Thursday, and made known to the campus through a page one story in the Daily on Friday.

The student court, according to the originators of the idea, would be a court of appeal above the SEC on issues such as constitutional interpretation and punitive measures. It was pointed out that the new court would produce a separation of judicial and executive powers in our student government and thus lead to a more efficient administration. The originators noted that modern democracies operate on such a division of powers.

Suggested composition of the court is four fourth year law students with the Students' Society President as Chairman having a vote only in the case of deadlock. Law students were suggested because of their familiarity with the functioning of courts and fourth year because they would be detached enough from the issue at hand to render a completely impartial judgement.

The inclusion of the President was suggested because it was felt that the court should not be completely divorced from the Students' Executive Council. In this way he would be able to present a clear picture of the issue to the other members.

Proposed method of appointment of the law members of the court would be to allow the fourth year class to name four students, subject to a two-thirds vote of the SEC. The originators suggested that once accepted the posts be irrevocable. At the same time the idea was thrown out that the counsel for the SEC be its law representative.

If adopted, the originators declared, the court would not only produce a more effective student government but also enhance its prestige as establishing a precedent soon to be followed by other universities.

The proposed plan has sparked wide discussion among McGill students. A few of the many letters to the editor on the subject of the court will be found on page two.

Studies To Fold Paper At U Of M

MONTREAL, Jan. 13 (CUP) — Examination results have cast foreboding shadows on the activities of the student newspaper at the University of Montreal, as almost the entire staff feels it may be forced to resign.

Luc Dansereau, editor of Le Quartier Latin said last Wednesday that the resignations — effective Jan. 25 — are necessary because of the pressure of academic work.

"The staff thinks that by devoting so much of its time to the paper, studies are being compromised", he said.

The present staff is the second one this year. As yet no official resignations have been tendered. Most of the staff is in second year law, and the results of the Christmas exams have not proved encouraging.

Exams have also taken their toll on the students' council, where two committee chairmen are contemplating resigning. They are the directors of the committee on education, and the committee on social activity.

Should they go, this will leave only the publications committee — responsible for the year book — untouched by resignations, and a council upheaval earlier this year.

1960 WUS Scholars Will Study In Hong Kong or Israeli Schools

This year's WUS scholarships are to the University of Hong Kong and the Hebrew University, or the Technicon in Israel.

Both Scholarships are open to men or women graduates of any Canadian university who are Canadian citizens. The scholarship to the University of Hong Kong will be available for the academic year 1960-61, and may be renewed for a second year, subject to the recommendation of the University authorities. The duration of the scholarship to any university in Israel is eight to ten months, commencing November and depending on the institution.

Both scholarships are open to men or women graduates,

The total value of the scholarship to the University of Hong Kong is $1,500, and covers tuition, lodging in a College or Hall of residence, and an allowance of $1,500 (Hong Kong money) for food and miscellaneous expenses. There may be a possibility of augmenting the award by payment for part time tutorial or demonstration work in certain fields. However all travel costs are to be borne by the scholar.

Hong Kong University has Faculties of Arts, Science, Medicine, Engineering, and Architecture. All courses are given in English. In certain circumstances a scholar may be admitted as a candidate for an M.A. or M.Sc., degree.

ISRAEL

Applicants to the scholarship in Israel should have a knowledge of Hebrew if planning to attend lectures; it is desirable but not essential to know some Hebrew for research work. The fields of study are unrestricted but will depend on the courses offered at the university of the scholars choice. The scholarship is awarded for postgraduate or research study which does not culminate in a degree.

The award consists of a grant of IL 205 0 (approx. $1140) for the academic session, commencing November, and an additional grant of approximately $195 for a four month language course prior to the academic year. This is a special intensive course in Hebrew and takes place from July to October. All tuition is free at the Hebrew University or the Technicon, and travelling expenses are the responsibility of the scholar.

The National Scholarship Committee of WUS of Canada will be responsible for selection, subject to the final approval of the Israel government. For further details concerning either scholarship write to WUS, 22 Willcocks St., Toronto 5.

Charity Begins...

Money is a problem everywhere — even sequestered university students are frequently low on funds, in fact, more often than not, they're downright broke. And it's embarrassing. There are few McGilliens, however, who are beset by problems of poverty, disease and social inequities — problems which face thousands of students in Japan, Korea, Hongkong, India, South Vietnam and Thailand, and problems which daily confront hundreds of families in this city.

The annual Combined Charities Campaign which is being held this week is an attempt to alleviate some of these hardships. By means of a campus-wide canvass, volunteers are hoping to collect an average of two dollars from each student. Half the proceeds from the Appeal will go to the World University Service of Canada, which helps with the housing, health and education of students in foreign countries. The remaining 50% is divided equally between the Red Feather Campaign, the Federation of Catholic Charities, and the Combined Jewish appeal which administer to needy families in Montreal.

The Campaign committee is not resorting to gimmicks in their appeal to students. They are not asking students to fast for two days. They are not employing tactics of high-pressure salesmanship. They just hope you will realize that there are people who need a bite of food more than you need that beer at the "Shine". They hope you will give generously when you meet your canvasser.

New Interest

Apathy — student apathy, that is — has long been a favorite topic of Daily editors. Small wonder, if one considers that campus balloting hardly ever exceeds the 45 per cent mark or if one judges the Letters column of the Daily whose contents comprise almost exclusively destructive criticism or raging verbal wars on such unstudent topics as "Herr Krupp and the West" or if one bears in mind that a quorum (300 out of 5500 members) is the exception not the rule at a Students' Society meeting.... We could go on and on.

Of late however, there has been a surprising upsurge of campus interest in student affairs. The idea of a "Student Court", as conceived by a small group of students, has rapidly caught the imagination of many students hitherto not involved in campus affairs nor, we suppose, even previously interested. We print today a sampling of the many letters received, including one which was signed by no less than one hundred ten students.

If the surprising student interest in the "Student Court" can be used as a reliable yardstick, and we think that it is at least an indication of the direction, if not magnitude, student thoughts seem to be once again swinging toward a revitalized interest in campus government. Revitalized interest will mean revitalized student activities — bigger, better, and more carefully planned. It would be about time.

110 Students Support Court

Sir:

We, the undersigned, support the new "Student Court" of Justice.

(Editor's note: We regret that due to space limitations we are unable to publish the names of the 110 students who signed the above petition.)

Court Needed As Stabilizer

Sir:

A feeling of criticism towards the S.E.C. has lately been detectable — the feeling that this body, at present the highest student authority at the university, is scarcely more than a breeding ground for aspiring campus politicians. This is an altogether unhealthy attitude for a student body to adopt towards its legislature. However, we must realize and try to understand the difficulties confronting the S.E.C. when they are called upon to adjudicate issues governed by a constitution which they themselves have drawn up. The S.E.C. is a council responsible to a constitution, and, at present, possessing the judicial authority to interpret the elements of that constitution.

The intentions of any governing body should be to perform their duties with unquestionable integrity. In order to be able to do this, the members of the council must remain aloof from the petty politicking that induces bias and prejudice. I am not suggesting that this is prevalent here at McGill, but rather that the separation of judiciary and legislative responsibilities would prevent any doubt from being cast upon the impartiality of the S.E.C. in matters of legal decision. A Student Court would exert a stabilizing influence upon the balance of student government, and provide a mechanism by which the dignity and respect that any effective student government requires could be attained.

It should be noted that there is a marked similarity between the Federal-Provincial government system and our present undergraduate representative system, both in financial and authoritative matters. The difference lies in the control of the Supreme Court over the Government's interpretation of the Constitution — of which there is no parallel here at McGill. A Student Court would complete the analogy. It remains to be seen whether the S.E.C. will adopt this suggested innovation, and whether the fourth year law class (who, it appears, have not yet been consulted on the matter) are prepared to take on the responsibility, but let us hope that we may set an example to others by our justice, and seldom have to call the Court to order.

S.J. Stracey
B. Eng. 4.

Student Court Is Biggest Laugh Yet

Sir:

Four years at McGill have served only to disillusion me. I imagined this to be a place of purity and study. I also imagined the S.E.C. to be a body in charge of taking up, on a high level, student problems which may arise.

For this I apologize, Mr. Editor. The previous S.E.C. has proven itself to be a group of bickering politicians. While I once imagined our representatives as being student statesmen, I find many of them to be sick, pseudo-politicians with the uncontrollable urge for more and more useless power.

Does the average McGill student realize, for instance, that two basic political "blocks" exist on campus, and that they oppose each other on every move made? Take a good look at the minutes on the Commerce election issue of the last SEC meeting in December. Then get the full story and you will find that a very small portion of the debate concerned the issue directly; the vast majority of it was useless bickering. Do people realize that more than one politician has ambitions of "running the campus". Imagine, we are all going to be "run" by someone!

Many SEC members imagine themselves as being all-powerful, important autocrats. What they fail to realize is that few care. This is not a form of student apathy, but is merely an indication that people are fed up with what is being thrown around these meetings, and, in general, the ridiculousness of the entire situation. Remember gentlemen of the SEC, you are not the best, but the few that have remained interested!

Now a "Student Court of Justice" has been proposed. This is about the biggest laugh yet. Now we must form a higher body, perhaps, because we do not trust the SEC.

Let's not get carried away with student politics — the biggest farce in a busy school. We are here to study, not bicker. Spare time should be spent on fruitful activities (or a cleansed SEC that can be made into a constructive organization), not rallying the B.P.O.C.'s behind some individual, or forming higher, potentially more corrupt bodies.

Henry Mintzberg

Daily Must Cater To the Campus

Sir:

Miss Maily seems to be most concerned because the death of Albert Camus was not mentioned in the Daily editorial columns. It should perhaps be pointed out to her that there have been and still are in the world many other men of Mr. Camus' calibre; great men do die, but if the Daily were to write an epitaph for each one, it would soon become an obituary column instead of newspaper. The line must be drawn somewhere.

The Daily is a student newspaper. As such, it should be concerned above all with student affairs; it is not the Daily's function to be a miniature Star or Gazette, with articles and editorials on national and international events already more widely covered by the regular press. It is assumed that McGill students do not rely on the Daily to give them coverage of world affairs!

I feel it should also be mentioned that every student at McGill pays for the Daily through his University fees. The Daily is therefore obliged to print articles and features which will interest all types of readers; it cannot be solely an intellectual and literary paper; it is a newspaper for the whole campus, not for a minority group of those interested above all in literature and advanced intellectual ideas. In the variety of articles it prints, the Daily, in my opinion, strikes a good balance.

Ski Trails

by CECILE KALIFON
Women's Sports Editor

Skiing news takes over the athletic picture this week with several McGill co-eds leaving their trail in Laurentian Ski Zone Meets.

In addition, the WAA Ski House is booming with activity during the weekends and a Ski Day has been planned for skiers and non-skiers this Saturday.

ZONE MEETS

Gael Eakin, a third year Arts student, continues to monopolize the competition in the Laurentians. Fresh from a victory at Val David last week, she walked off with top honours in the Nordik Combined. Marian MacDougall, a member of the intercollegiate team for the past two years, placed sixth in the same race.

In the Ladies Class C Slalom, Nora Altman placed first with a 91.1 timing. An up and coming skier is Claudia Bierman, who placed sixth in the Junior C Ladies results.

A qualification race for the McGill Women's Ski Team will be held this Sunday, January 24. Any girls interested in skiing for McGill must participate in this tryout.

SKI DAY

A day up in the Laurentians has been planned for this Saturday. Cost for the excursion to Summit Sauvage near Val Morin is only $5.00, which includes tows, lunch and bus fare. The bus will leave Royal Victoria College at 8 am and will depart from the Laurentians at 5 pm. Participation in the races is optional. Applications are open for thirty students and these must be in the hands of the Physical Education Department in R.V.C. by Wednesday.

THE SKI HOUSE

For those not interested in participating competitively in skiing, there is a Ski House in Ste. Adele en Haut where an enjoyable weekend could be spent.

Located near hills 40 and 80, the House has a maximum capacity of a dozen snow enthusiasts.

Badminton Resumes; Murray League Play

The Badminton Club, which has now resumed its regular meetings on Tuesday nights at 7:30 pm in the Currie Gym, has a busy program scheduled for the next few weeks.

To get things rolling, a mixed doubles tournament is scheduled for 7:30 pm tonight.

The Club has also joined the Murray League through which it participates in a series of inter-city tournaments. On Friday, January 15, eight McGill representatives put up a battle against the "Y", but finished off slightly crestfallen, with only three victories out of a total of sixteen games.

Another tournament is slated for Thursday, January 21, when McGill plays host to the MAA.

Four players representing the Red and White travelled to Kingston last Saturday to take part in an exhibition tourney at Queen's. The doubles team was comprised of Bertha Kalifon and Roz Saginur, while Nancy Hankin and Nancy Anglin each attempted singles competitions. Though all four girls put up a good fight, they were overpowered by the Queens' gals and returned without a victory on hand.
